Future building projects discussed during forum

by Karen Van Prooyen
editor

Future projects, campus cable and the Fort Wayne campus were just some of the topics discussed during Monday night's open forum.

Sponsored by Student Senate, the forum was a time for students to interact with Dr. Daryl Yost, provost/executive vice president; Dr. Ken Swan, vice president for the Fort Wayne campus; Bob Hodge, chief information officer; and Jerry Nelson, director of the dining commons.

One question asked was concerning major building projects in Taylor's future.

According to Yost, the first project scheduled is the Communication Arts facility which will be built on the north side of the Smith-Hermanson Music Center. Ground breaking is scheduled for May, 1993.

If the weather is decent and the contractor moves along, the building may be completed by the fall 1994 or spring, 1995, Yost said.

The renovation or addition to Sammy Morris Hall is next on the list followed by a major addition to the Odle Gymnasium, including additional space for winter intramurals and student activities center.

The student government offices, bookstore and post office and student activities center also will be located in this addition.

There are still plans for a swimming pool, but this will be determined by cost.

"It will be very expensive and will take a lot of fund raising," Yost said.

According to Nelson, there also are plans for improvement to the dining commons. These plans may be viewed by contacting Nelson.

Yost also said an additional parking may be located south of English and Gerig Hall as soon as the summer of 1993.

When asked about the future of West Village, Yost said, "West Village has a bright future."

Until Morris Hall is renovated, or rebuilt to accommodate more people, West Village will continue to exist for another 10 years, he said.

The topic of expanding the Taylor cable system to Fairlane was discussed, but there are other priorities for the apartments, Yost said. These include installing new floor joists in two sections of Fairlane, replacing windows and black topping the parking lot.

Students to aid victims of hurricane from the Taylor News Bureau

Approximately 15 Taylor students will be using their Thanksgiving break to serve residents of areas in Florida destroyed by Hurricane Andrew in August.

A group of students involved with the Student Education Association (SEA) will be delivering school supplies to elementary students in the Leisure City area. The supplies to be delivered have been collected from Taylor students by members of SEA.

A second group of students will be involved in clean-up work and construction in near Florida City.

The trip sponsored by World Christian Fellowship (WCF) will involve sweeping up debris, roofing houses and other general clean-up.

Money raised at the "Battle of the Bands" Saturday night, will raise money for the project (see related story).

According to Reynold Yordy, student co-director of WCF, there is still time for students to sign up for the trip. For more information, contact WCF at x5335.

Survey shows family valued, alcohol problem

by Melissa Halpern
features editor

The results of the 1991-92 Student Life Survey were presented in the faculty meeting last Thursday.

In an interview prior to the meeting, Walter Campbell, associate vice president for student development/dean of students, addressed some of the key findings of the survey conducted by the Student Life Committee.

According to the student life committee the purpose of the yearly survey is "to gather information to assess the community life at Taylor University, help develop programs and direct resources to meet students needs more effectively."

Campbell was encouraged by the results in the areas of family and personal relationships with Jesus Christ.

Family

"Ninety-nine percent of our students said preserving the family unit is necessary to the stability of society," Campbell said, "That has increased from 70 percent in 1974. I think that is a pretty strong statement, and that is important."

Christianity

"Also, 87 percent of our students have said, 'I have accepted Christ and am actively striving to be a dedicated, growing Christian.' That to me is encouraging."

Campbell also discussed several areas with which the student body struggles.

These issues include alcohol, chapel attendance, profanity and cheating, according to Campbell's interpretation of the survey.

Alcohol

"Alcohol obviously is a problem. Twenty percent of our students are using alcohol, and that is troubling," Campbell said.

College bands to perform in 'Underground Monolith'

by Jenny Tefft
staff reporter

The Healing and Spaceman Spiff will visit campus this weekend.

No, they are not prospective students, instead, these are just two of the five bands that will perform in the Underground Monolith, a music festival featuring college bands.

The concert will begin at 7:30 p.m., Saturday, in the Rediger Chapel/Auditorium.

The remaining bands include Alexander Field from Gordon College; Funky Viral Invasion, Wheaton College; and Black Carnation, Calvin College.

The Healing is from Grace College and Spaceman Spiff is a combination of Taylor and Wheaton students.

Cost for the concert is $2, with the proceeds going to send a group of Taylor students to Florida to help in hurricane relief efforts. Tickets will be available at the door.

Upcoming concerts:

Sunday Nov. 22:

The Symphonic Band will present 'Around the World in Music' at 3 p.m. in the Rediger Chapel/Auditorium

Thursday, Dec. 3:

The Percussion, Flute, Woodwind and Brass Ensembles will present a concert of Chamber Music at 7:30 p.m. in the Carruth Recital Hall.

Both concerts are free and open to the public.

Students plan summer invasion of Russia

by Charity Singleton
associate editor

Continuing the "Heartland to Heartland" exchange with Nizhni Novgorod University, Taylor University students will have the opportunity to spend five weeks in the heart of Russia learning the language and studying the culture.

The trip will be next summer from May 24 to June 28, and students will obtain the equivalent of one semester of training in the Russian language.

Students can earn four credits for the language training to fulfill the general education cross cultural requirement or a general education history requirement. Up to four additional credits may be earned through an independent study students may choose to do while they are in Russia.

"The trip is open to anybody from freshman to senior in any major, but the main thing we are looking for is students who have a very strong interest in Russian culture and who are willing to put up with conditions that are less comfortable," said Dr. Stephen Hoffmann, professor of political science.

During the month at Nizhni Novgorod, students will live in a residence hall with Russian students who have been studying English. Along with the formal educational experiences, there will be opportunities to interact with the Russian students and professors.

Students will also be involved in a week of visiting various sites in Moscow and St. Petersburg, as well as excursions throughout Nizhni Novgorod.

According to Hoffmann, there are three goals for the students who decide to participate in this trip. First, he hopes the trip will continue the positive relationship that developed between Nizhni

Novgorod University and Taylor.

The second goal of the trip is to provide a quality cross cultural experience for students.

"There's just no substitute for being able to actually live with people of another culture," Hoffmann said.

Finally, the trip will provide the opportunity for students to continue their Christian witness.

"Although it's not a missions tripper se, it's an integration of faith and learning in the best possible sense of the word," he said.

The cost of the trip will be under $3,000, which includes all expenses (travel to and from Taylor, room and board, excursions, materials and tuition). Hoffmann said he is hoping to have 10 to 15 students on the trip.

Those interested should contact Hoffmann or attend an organizational meeting at 9 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 1, in room 234 of the Reade Center.

PLANNING A TRIP TO EUROPE?—Senior Laura McDowell takes a look at some information from the Greater Europe Mission in the Hodson Dining Commons this week.

LSC adds news resources for learning

by Gillian Hu
from basic reporting

The Learning Support Center has added several news items that should be of help to students in test and lesson preparations

Testing

The latest edition of the Graduate Management Admissions Test preparation helps are now available in the LSC, located on the first floor of the Zondervan Library.

In addition to the mock exams and cassette tapes to help students in prepare to go into graduate school in management, help material also is available on two and a half inch computer disks for the convenience of students.

In addition, there are cost and logistical factors in running the cable to the apartments, as well as licensing considerations.

In Fort Wayne, new majors are being considered but have yet to be approved, Swan said. These include criminal justice, public relations/communications, and organizational leadership.

"We want to diversify to provide a greater opportunity for Taylor students," Swan said.

According to Swan, three new majors should be added by next fall in order to recruit and attract new students. The additional majors would be phased in over a three-year period.

In the area of information, Hodge addressed the topic of voice mail. "But we are not resisting it."

CPR Class

Campus Safety will be sponsoring a CPR class at 6 p.m., Dec. 2 in the Stuart Room. Call Campus Safety for more information.

AUDITIONS FOR the suspense thriller DEATHTRAP will be held Dec. 1 & 2
Sign up now in the CA Publicity Office

This is the first time that the GMAT helps are on disk, according to Billie Manor, director of the LSC.

Lessons

A new set of books are now available for reference to students at the LSC.

The books and helps pertain to Sunday school instruction.

There are different sets of helps for different denominations.

They have been donated by the Zondervan Publishers as part of an agreement by the publishing house to give Taylor a copy of every new book they publish, according to Manor.

Some of these books also were donated from the library of Dr. Jay Kesler, president.

Craft sale to offer preseason buys

by Matt Harvey
from basic reporting

With less than 35 shopping days until Christmas, the social work department will provide the Taylor community with an opportunity to get some of the shopping done early.

The social work department will sponsor the fifth annual Craft Sale Saturday, Nov. 21, from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. in the Smith-Hermanson Music Center.

Items such as hand-painted porcelain plates, Indian crafts, woven baskets, doll clothes, crocheted items and food will be sold.

At some craft tables, re-enactors will demonstrate techniques used to make crafts of the 1700's.

A story corner will be available to allow parents to shop without their children and Santa Claus will be at the sale from 1 to 3 p.m.

The sale is open to the general public from the north entrance of the building.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR: THANKSGIVING THOUGHTS

"This is your home, Agnes. I won't rent it to anyone else."

Those are the words Lynn Winterholter said about the place where I often sit near her desk. I will never forget them.

Neither will I ever forget the many other places over Taylor's campus that have been "home" to me.

It is time for my special Thanksgiving thoughts, and they are many. This is my last Thanksgiving as a student at Taylor. What an experience it has been.

I am very thankful that God has permitted me to complete an unfinished part of my life. In the process, many of you have reached out in love and kindness to help and to be a friend. I give you a heart full of gratitude. I am so thankful to be a part of the Taylor family, and I love you.

Survey

During this year I have used alcoholic beverages:

Chapel Attendance

Seventy-nine percent of the student body said they attended chapel frequently during the academic year. "Chapel attendance to me is a habit. You're in the habit of going, or you're not in the habit of going. It is very easy to get out of that habit and use it for studying or sleep—just to see it as unimportant," Campbell said.

"All of us have given our word—faculty and students alike—that we would be there. So, a thoughtful person would consider that, 'Yes, I've given my word that I will attend chapel,'" Campbell said. "We should have a lot more people in chapel."

Profanity

"Fifty percent of our students say they use profanity. That is a pretty high number," Campbell said.

During this year I have used profanity:

"I don't think anybody would say that profanity is healthy....It's something that we should be working at as obedient Christians," Campbell said. "We ought to be watching our tongues."

Cheating

"The cheating [issue] is important. Fourteen percent of our students say they occasionally cheat—that's 250 people," Campbell said. "That's a lot of students."

Campbell pointed out that most of these issues are largely a matter of integrity.

According to the survey, 90 percent of the students agreed their integrity was at stake if they violated the standards established by the "Life Together Covenant."

"That means something. Students do recognize their word is worth something and if they give their word it is important," Campbell said.

Preserving the family unit is necessary for the stability of society:

He was also encouraged by the 12 percent increase in that statistic over the last ten years.

"Hopefully we can continue to promote the integrity issue as an important one in this Christian community," Campbell said.

With 1,205 students responding, Campbell believes the survey is accurate.

"I have talked with Leon Adkison, [professor of systems], and Vance Maloney, [associate professor of psychology], and they feel that in light of the size of the sample, it is a very accurate sample," Campbell said.

"With this many responses you get the very conservative side and the more liberal side and then those that fall in the middle," Campbell said. "So statistically the size of the sample shows it is very accurate."

Campbell said the results of the survey are very helpful to him as dean of students.

"Any time I see slippage or a movement in the wrong direction, I realize we need to pay attention to [that area] and address it. That's what is helpful to me," Campbell said.

"It is a way of monitoring the student life, which is integral to Taylor University."

"We don't want prospective students coming here and staying in the residence halls to find what was said in meetings on campus is contrary to what the students are really like," Campbell said.

My 2 Cents Worth

by Melissa Halpern

Take comfort, you're not alone

SHWEW!
It's finally over.

The last full week before Turkey Break has come and gone, but not without its damage.

If your week was anything like mine, you must be at your wit's end (does anyone really know what that expression means?).

Beyond the paper and three tests, this has quite possibly been the worst week of my life

Now, I know that sounds rather extreme and perhaps even irrational, but believe me, this has been the week from The Depths.

You know you're having a bad week when...

•You go to get your picture taken and your sitting number is 666. (It really happened, just ask Julie Scroggins.)

•The girl in front of you gets the last grilled cheese sandwich at the D.C.

•You pull an allnighter on a Sunday.

•You take your laundry out of the dryer and find five socks—and none of them match.

•You finish your paper for Freshman Seminar and realize you were supposed to read the book first.

•You read the Student Life Survey results and find you are a major offender of the top four problems.

•Walt calls you into his office because he thinks you were serious in the previous statement.

•You drop your glass in the D.C. and it bounces three times before it breaks.

•You attend a self-help meeting and they ask you for advice.

•You try to sneak down the middle of the D.C. lines and Viola cards you.

•You go to your birthday party and the cake is gone by the time you get there.

•You can't think of anything to say that is kind, true or necessary.

•You call T.O.P.P.I.T. for dinner and realize it is Monday.

•You go to get your ear pierced and they thought you said, "Nose."

•You walk out of the library and the beeper sounds.

•You mistake your Nair for your bottle of shampoo.

•You go to a banquet and half of your plate is yams.

•You finally get a package in the mail and it is a rotten baked potato (no "e," Dan) inside a Red Zinger tea box.

•You have to poll The Echo staff and your friends for ideas about your column.

Name: Shawn Royal, freshman

Major: Music/Composition Claim to fame: Auditioning for the talent show Star Search

All of us, at one time or another, have dreamt of performing on Star Search, rubbing shoulders with Ed McMahon and taking home the prize money.

But Shawn Royal may be well on his way towards making that dream a reality.

Royal, a freshman transfer student who attended Summit Christian College (now TUFW) last year, recently auditioned for the show in Indianapolis after seeing an ad on TV offering auditions for the show.

"It's not a far-fetched dream for me," Royal said. "I'd been praying about it and then I saw the ad on TV for auditions."

So three weeks ago, Royal, along with 2,000 other hopefuls, showcased their talents. Royal, who sang

Royal

In Christ Alone, by Michael English, was one of 400 who made the first cut and performed again the next week.

Royal should find out this weekend if he made the final cut of 30-50 contestants. If he does, Royal will be flown down to MGM Studios in Florida to compete on the show for as long as keeps winning.

"I believe God wants me to minister in song right now," Royal said. "I can't take any credit for it."

Now that sounds like a definite "four-star" performance.

Fall season comes to a close

by David J. Chamberlin
sports editor

The fall sports season has finally come to a close and now it's time to break out your basketball shoes, lace 'em up and head to the nearest court for a little hoops action. Before that happens though, lets take one final look at the last week of fall sports excitement.

Women's Cross Country

The Lady Trojans finished with 79 points last Saturday and ran to third place in the NCCAA women's cross country championships in Springfield, Ohio.

Junior Naomi Moore and senior Amy Sims finished 6th and 15th, respectively, and were named All-Americans for finishing in the top 15. Moore finished in 19:14 and Sims completed the race in 19:37.

Juniors Amy Stone and Sara Smearsoll were named NCCAA Scholar-Athletes. The women will compete in the NAIA National meet at Kenosha, Wis., Saturday.

Men's Cross Country

Juniors Joel Hamilton and Steven Stringfellow earned NCCAA All-

American honors last Saturday, as the Trojans coasted to a fourth place finish in the NCCAA men's cross country championships.

Hamilton finished 12th (25:57) and Stringfellow placed 13th (26:02). Taylor finished with 103 points behind Malone (50), Indiana Wesleyan (69) and was edged out of third place by Cedarville (100).

The men also will compete in the NAIA National meet, Saturday.

Volleyball

The No. 3 seed Lady Trojans were stopped in the semifinals of the NAIA District 21 tournament Saturday, as they fell to No. 2 seed Huntington 8-15, 3-15, 1-15.

Sophomore Shari Lichty led the team with 12 assists and 6 digs, while senior Kristi Dyck had 6 kills and 2 blocks. Freshman Natalie Stanislaw also contributed 4 kills and 8 assists.

Dyck and Lee were both named to the All-District 21 team. Lee led the team in kills this season with 439. Dyck finished with 403. Sophomore Kristy Price led the team in assists with 625.

The Lady Trojans finished their season 32-11.

Football

The Trojans, 2-7-1, were blown out by Anderson 47-18, in their final game of the season.

Mistakes killed the team, as they turned the ball over 10 times.

Freshman Kenny Locke finished the season on a down note, throwing five interceptions and completing 19 of 34 passes for 243 yards. His lone bright spot was a 68-yard touchdown pass to sophomore Mark Hertzler.

Seniors Matt Widdoes and Casey Sparrow both ended their careers Saturday. Widdoes ran for 643 yards and five touchdowns this season to give him 2,168 yards and 10 touchdowns in his career.

Sparrow came up only 38 yards short of Taylor's single-season record for receiving yardage. He did however set the school record for receptions in a season with 80 and is tied for touchdown receptions with 12. He ended the season with 995 receiving yards and 1,794 for his career.

Senior Jason Diller led the team with 99 tackles this season.

Club to host tourney

by David J. Chamberlin
sports editor

The Taylor men's volleyball club will host "Block Party '92," a men's volleyball invitational, from 1-7 p.m. Saturday in the Odle Gymnasium.

Teams from Grace College, Anderson University, Taylor-Fort Wayne, two teams from Wheaton, and the men's volleyball club will compete in the tournament. The invitational will be a single elimination tournament, after each team plays in the first round of a round-robin.

"We're hoping to meet Wheaton's A-team in the finals," said senior Tommy Lee Jones, president of the club. "The Taylor vs. Taylor-Fort Wayne match should also be a really good."

Competition fierce as season opens

by David J. Chamberlin
sports editor

The women's basketball season began last Saturday, as they competed in the Huntington tournament.

This year's team has only three players—sophomore Jennifer Bottom, junior Stacey Garlinger who was out with a back injury last year and senior Dawn Greer.

"Bottom is the only returning starters, because four of our five starters graduated," Coach Tena Krause said. "Greer was our sixth man last year, and Garlinger is going to come in and play power forward since she has recovered."

Cristi Weaver and Shannon Clip are Krause's two standouts so far this year. Weaver is going to start and Clip is in between fifth and sixth, Krause said.

The Lady Trojans have improved their outside shooting this year with the addition of three three-point shooters.

"Last year we only had Rachel Haley, but this year Bottom, Clip, and Weaver give us a three-point triple threat in the backcourt," Krause said. "Now the defense won't be able to collapse on just one outside threat."

"Our quickness and depth also will help us a lot this year. We can close down passing lanes with our quickness and maintain that pressure throughout the games because of the depth of our six through nine players."

The competition for starting positions this year has been fierce throughout the preseason.

"The team unity, support and the motivation have been really high," she said. "It probably has to do with everybody fighting for a position, but it has been a good kind of fighting."

"They are supporting each other, and complimenting each other on the floor and on the bench."

Tuesday, the Lady Trojans, 0-3, were plagued by 30 turnovers and were defeated by St. Francis, 88-51.

Sophomore Jennifer Bottom had 14 points, and freshman Cristi Weaver added eight for the women.

Last weekend, the women lost both games they played in the Huntington tournament. In the first round, Huntington defeated the women, 57-32.

Junior Stacy Garlinger led the team with 11 points. In the second round, Taylor fell to St. Francis 75-63. Weaver and Bottom each scored 16 points.

The Lady Trojans will play at 8 p.m. Friday in the Kalamzoo tournament and at 1 or 3 p.m. Saturday.
